Thanks to Mitre for the football.

I am privileged to have the opportunity of writing this brief tribute to Jimmy (Jinky) Johnstone and Bobby Lennox—two famous Lisbon Lions—on the occasion of their Testimonial. While Jimmy is now away from Celtic, playing for Sheffield United, both players have given long and dedicated service to Celtic Football Club and their country over many years. There are countless spectators, not just in Glasgow but wherever Celtic have played in recent years, who have been delighted by the artistry and enthusiasm of these two great players. They have been able to entertain football fans with skills that are alas too rarely seen in 1976. It is all the more appropriate then that Celtic's opponents today are Manchester United, who have enjoyed happy relations with Celtic over the years and who have brought back to the English scene a dimension of entertaining and skilful football seldom seen today.

On behalf of the Committee I would like to thank all of you for your support tonight and would also wish to acknowledge all those who have donated so generously to the Fund, the Chairmen, Directors, Managers and players of both Manchester United F.C. and Celtic F.C. for co-operating with the Committee to render this exciting evening possible.

Finally, I am sure you will join me in wishing Jimmy and Bobby every possible success for the future and continued association with the game which both so clearly and dearly relish.

Joseph Beltrami

my Tribute

by Jock Stein, Manager, Celtic F.C.

It's amazing how often players make their name in football because they are part of a partnership, solid full-backs, dependable half-backs... or dazzling wingers.

And the partnership of Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox will surely be remembered because they made such a vivid contrast.

On the right-wing there was the mercurial little red-head Johnstone taking the ball up to defenders, wiggling his way past, and generally making the build-up for his attacking mates.

On the left-wing there was the more direct Lennox, in that "Lisbon Lions" side galloping on to the perfect passes put to him by Bobby Murdoch and Bertie Auld.

Fashions change in football, and for too long in my opinion wingers have been discarded.

That's why I am delighted that Manchester United, the team I rate as the most exciting in British football this season, are the opposition tonight.

For, with Gordon Hill and Steve Coppell, they have shown the way back to football, the way to wingers.

Certainly Celtic's best spells during my time as manager have always been when we had wingers.

And one aspect which is sometimes unnoticed. If a team plays with wingers they are not defensive, for unlike midfield men they do not shuttle back to clutter up at the back.

Jimmy Johnstone was one of the all-time great entertainers of football, I suppose there have been few players who won so completely the affection of the fans.

If I was asked to name his greatest-ever game I think I would pick his display against Red Star of Belgrade in the European Cup.

He was promised if we had a big enough lead he would not have to make the return trip to Yugoslavia, because of his dislike of flying... and we won 5-0.

So he didn't go, and the Slavs, then bossed by Real Madrid manager Miljan Miljanic, could not believe we had allowed him to stay at home after his marvellous game in Glasgow.

Bobby Lennox was a forward I consider who suffered all during his career from something that affects few players... he was too quick really for the human eye.

It meant he got caught out repeatedly in hair-line offside decisions, and in these situations linesmen usually give the benefit to defenders.

How many more goals he would have scored if so many of his darting runs had not been stopped by the waving flag of a linesman.

It is a great tribute to Lennox that he has survived to hold the proud title of the last "Lisbon Lion" on the Parkhead staff.

Jimmy and Bobby were two of the greatest pals off the field. They had a different attitude to the game, just as they were opposites in style on the field.

So tonight in what is surely a fitting end to a season's football we pay tribute to two players who contributed so much to Celtic, and the enjoyment of football fans not just in Scotland but all over Europe.

They are two wee men who played a giant part in our success... I salute them!

Jimmy Johnstone

It will be quite an experience for me tonight walking through the main door at Celtic Park and for the last time donning the famous green and white strip.

Needless to say, many memories will come flooding back—triumphs and disappointments, joys and sorrows of an unforgettable, if sometimes controversial, career with the club.

Tonight I'll remember walking through the front doors for the first time in my early teens to become a ball-boy at Celtic Park.

By a strange coincidence Manchester United, the club who are so kindly providing the opposition for tonight's Testimonial match, was the first senior club to show an interest in me as a footballer.

However, to play with Celtic was my burning ambition and when I was invited to join them they didn't have to ask me twice.

The fact that I was just over 5 feet tall and weighed not much over the 6 stone mark caused a lot of doubts to be expressed about me at Parkhead.

I can honestly say that I worked very hard at proving myself and during my farmed-out spell with Blantyre Celtic I won a cap for Junior Scotland.

When I finally arrived at Celtic Park as a professional footballer in 1961 I met another football aspirant in the shape of Bobby Lennox and we struck up a friendship which has never been broken.

Mind you, although the "Saltcoats Flyer" got into the first team for an odd game before me in that first season, I became a regular before he did. In fact, after three seasons I had scored nine goals to his solitary goal in a league game.

The fact that he went on to score a "few" goals more than me in the years that were to follow was because I made them for him.

Kidding aside—if controversy hung over me like a shadow during my years at Celtic Park—trouble and Bobby Lennox never mixed.

He has always been a perfect professional and the sort of fellow that youngsters should model themselves upon.

Getting back to my own career, I've had a lot of thrills and made myself a comfortable living since the days when I started out as an apprentice welder before finally becoming a full-time player at Celtic Park.

In many ways I was lucky in the time I arrived at Celtic Park. Those were the days of the "Kelly Kids" and from the arrival of Jock Stein in 1965 and our Cup final win against Dunfermline soon thereafter, we really became a force in the world of football.

Everyone at Celtic Park, directors, management and staff gave me a lot of help, encouragement and guidance during my career for which I'll always be grateful.

But what I shall remember above all else is the really great bunch of players, on and off the park, with whom I had the pleasure of sharing so many Celtic triumphs.

Another thing that pleases me is getting an opportunity to renew my acquaintanceship with the Celtic support.

If I single out the past and present fans who frequented the "jungle" I hope all other supporters will forgive me. It's just that I seemed to be inspired to my best performances when playing at the Janefield Street side of the park.

Finally I want to express my thanks to everyone who has done anything to help in the arrangements for tonight's match and particularly the Testimonial Committee, the Celtic and Manchester clubs and everyone who turns out for the game tonight to pay tribute, if that's the right word, to Bobby and myself. I thank them one and all.

Bobby Lennox

When I joined Celtic fifteen years ago it was a dream come true, but never in my wildest imaginings could I have hoped to enjoy one tenth of the success I have had with the club.

Perhaps it was lucky for Jimmy Johnstone too that he arrived at Celtic Park at the same time so that I could teach him a thing or two about the game. Seriously, though, it is great to share a Testimonial Match with the "wee man"—one of the greatest football entertainers I have ever seen.

To return to my career at Celtic Park I had a sort of up and down start with the club.

In my very first season, 1961-62, I played two first team matches. One of these was a Glasgow Cup final replay against Third Lanark which Celtic won by 3-2 and so I collected my first cup winners medal as a senior.

Any thoughts that I had "arrived" as a Celtic player soon disappeared the following season however, when I made only nine first team appearances and failed to score in any one of them.

The following season I made just six first team appearances but broke my "duck" by scoring in a 4-4 draw against Third Lanark at Celtic Park.

In 1964-65 season I almost became a regular and in a total of 37 games I found the net 21 times. It was really just as well because I had attracted attention as a junior with Ardeer Recreation because of my goal scoring ability and one goal between 1961 and 1964 couldn't have had the boss, Mr. McGrory, worrying about his goal-scoring exploits being emulated.

The fact that I did find the net fairly regularly over the next ten seasons or so speaks volumes for the great players I have been privileged to play alongside at Celtic Park plus the help from the "boss"—Jock Stein and all the backroom staff.

Celtic's triumph in Lisbon in 1967 must rate as my most memorable experience with the club but there have been countless others which have given me unforgettable memories.

Highlights of these would include my first Scottish Cup medal, my first League Championship medal, a hat-trick against Rangers at Ibrox, and every single occasion on which I pulled a Celtic jersey over my head.

I am delighted that Manchester United are providing the opposition for the Testimonial game—particularly as both Jimmy and myself played against the Old Trafford team here in 1966 in a Challenge Match which we won 4-1.

Not one of the Manchester players have survived from that game but former Celt Paddy Crerand played against us in that match and another ex-Celt Lou Macari will probably be in the "Reds" team tonight.

Talking about that last Manchester United visit, with very few changes in the line-ups both clubs went on to win the European Cup.

I would like to thank the Testimonial Committee for their excellent choice in inviting United north for this game and at the same time thank Tommy Docherty and everybody at Old Trafford for so kindly accepting the invitation.

In conclusion I would like to say a most sincere thank-you to Celtic supporters past and present for the tremendous encouragement they have given me during my time with the greatest football club in the business.

I think it is only fitting that the best team in the world should also be able to boast that they have got the greatest supporters in the world. To each and every one of you, thanks a million.

"LEMON & SPARRA"

by Glenn Gibbons, Daily Mail

Do you know why Bobby was nicknamed "Lemon"? It was because he made so many defenders look like suckers.

And Jimmy. He became known as "Sparra" because, when he was on the wing, full-backs trying to chase him would have had an easier job catching smallpox.

Yes, in Bobby and Jimmy, Celtic, like Raquel Welch, had a rerr perr. The one difference being that, while they could be uplifted (and frequently were by those marvellous Parkhead fans), they could never be separated.

Personally, I would more readily step between Ali and Frazier than try to split Johnstone and Lennox. Their unfaltering friendship has brought them so close, they're watertight.

They've been like that for years, of course. On trips to Europe, the nearest they ever came to being apart was when big Jock played them on different wings.

My first trip abroad with Celtic was almost seven years ago. It was to Lisbon, where the Scottish champions were playing Benfica in the second round of the European Cup.

Wee Jimmy's fabled fear of flying was something I had only heard about, and I remember thinking as I boarded the plane that it would be interesting to see how the wee man acts on board.

Two minutes after leaving Prestwick, you'd have sworn somebody had smuggled the Beatles aboard. There was J.J., accompanied, of course, by his fleet-footed shadow, Lemon, belting out current hits as though they were sitting in a bath instead of a plane.

They were therapeutic to each other. And to anybody round about them. You couldn't stay long in their company without laughing. Even now, whenever I come into contact with either or both, I leave feeling as though I've just had a visit from the man from Littlewoods.

"HE'LL PLAY FOR SCOTLAND"

I first saw Jimmy Johnstone play when he was only 13.

His gym teacher, Mr. Tommy Cassidy, who was in charge of St. John's School team, asked Sammy Wilson, then with Celtic, and myself, all of us from Uddingston, to come down and see a kid he had in his side.

"He'll play for Scotland," he predicted. When I saw Jimmy as both teams gathered for the 10.30 a.m. Saturday kick-off, I thought this was a wild forecast.

He was like a pigmy among giants. But I was ready to back Tommy Cassidy's forecast as soon as the game started. He brought the opposition down to size.

He had the same swerve and acceleration even then that has baffled opponents throughout the world. The upshot was that Mr. Cassidy took him in to see the then Celtic manager, Jimmy McGrory, who must have been just as sceptical when he saw the slim, slight schoolboy figure who wanted to play for Celtic.

Jimmy McGrory gave him a job as netboy, then he was promoted to the ground staff and eventually to the team that thrilled millions throughout the world.

At the same time Bobby Lennox was making just as rapid progress on the other wing.

Yet he almost signed for Chelsea instead of Celtic. The Chelsea scout Joe Kirk, who lives near Bobby in Saltecoats, took him down to Stamford Bridge.

"The big city life, however, wasn't my scene," Bobby recalls, and he came back home to sign eventually for Celtic.

"What a break that turned out to be," he says.

Old-timers still argue about the merits of wing combinations like Bertie Thomson and Charlie Napier, then later Jimmy Delaney and Frank Murphy. But has there ever been a more entertaining wing pair than Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox?

"THE WEE YINS"

by Dougie Baillie, Sunday Post

I'm delighted to be given this opportunity of quashing a rumour going the rounds of the many fans of Jimmy and Bobby. It wasn't the sight of me lining up against them that stunted their growth!

No, wee Jimmy and wee Bobby were born wee and stayed wee all through their long and distinguished careers at Celtic Park.

Any full-back in the world between 1966 and the present day, however, will testify (if he's got his breath back) lack of inches most certainly didn't mean lack of skill or heart.

Aye, wee Jimmy and wee Bobby were, and still are, great players. I trust their standing in the game will be reflected in the size of the gate tonight.

The two wee yins deserve a big yin!

BOBBY AND JIMMY— THE ENTERTAINERS

by John Blair, Sunday People

There was a minute remaining of a hectic, tense and pulsating match at Parkhead. The opponents were Morton—the date April 20, 1968—and the score stood at 1-1... it was a point Celtic couldn't afford to drop... it was a point that would almost certainly make deadly rivals Rangers the champions with only one League game still to be played.

Suddenly the gifted Bobby Murdoch got the ball on the right hand side of the midfield, pushed it to Jimmy Johnstone, who floated it into the Morton penalty area. Big John Hughes jumped with Billy Gray—and both missed.

The ball dropped at the feet of Bobby Lennox and from only three yards out Mr. Lightning snapped up the chance and sent the ball hurtling low past helpless goalkeeper Andy Crawford. It was a typical Lennox goal—and it was worth two valuable points that eventually meant the title going to Parkhead in 1968.

The Celtic fans erupted in joy when the ball crossed the line and after the back-slaps and celebrations little Jimmy Johnstone went up and put his arm around Lennox's shoulders. Johnstone was serious for a moment, said something in Lennox's ear and both players trooped off the pitch beaming bright smiles.

What did Johnstone say? Lennox recalls: "Wee Jimmy wasn't too pleased with me. He said: 'You left it late that time, didn't you? Why couldn't you score earlier than that?'"

Dynamic duo? Terrible Twins? Call them what you will... I prefer to call this refreshing pair The Entertainers. And who would argue? Certainly no-one who saw them together!

"GOAL-SCORING BOBBY"

Jack McGinn, Celtic View

Bobby Lennox was always the sort of player that managers dream about and opponents dread.

"How can you contain a man who is within inches of you one second and yards away the next?" is how one opponent described his speed in the middle sixties.

The wee man from Saltcoats continued buzzing because he kept himself in great shape throughout his fifteen years at Celtic Park while colleagues and opponents have come and gone by the dozens.

If Bobby didn't possess the same dribbling skills as his bosom pal he more than compensated with his astonishing acceleration, his positional sense and above all his penchant for scoring goals.

Just how successful he was in that department can be gauged from the fact that with 270 goals for the club he is the second highest goalscorer in Celtic's history.

"JIMMY THE TORMENTOR"

Jack McGinn, Celtic View

What can be said about Jimmy Johnstone that hasn't been said a hundred times before and in more languages than tongue can tell?

The "wee man" became one of the best known footballers in the world and was frequently voted into "World" teams by sports writers.

Jimmy was the tormentor-in-chief of defences in general and left full-backs in particular. Phenomenal performances against St. Etienne, Red Star, Leeds United, etc., can be trotted out, but he was an entertainer, and therefore a crowd pleaser, at all times with his wizardry of dribble and courage to go with it.

Jimmy Johnstone will be talked about in company with all the greats of the past and it is extremely doubtful that we will ever again see a player so small in stature and yet so big in ability.

"THE WONDER OF WINGERS"

Hugh Taylor, Daily Record

The wonder of wingers is something, alas, few youngsters now watching football ever savour. I feel sorry for them. For, to me there was nothing more delightful than the sight of a touchline artist at the height of his powers. And it is a tragedy that wingers are a dying breed in modern computerised soccer.

All the more reason, then, to pay tribute tonight to two of the greatest wingers football has known. They are entirely different in style, Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox, but they are princes of their trade.

Johnstone the mischievous imp, fascinating on the ball, tricky, a master of control... Lennox, fast, breezy, direct, a tremendous chance-taker.

They brought colour and glamour to football. And there were no more likeable stars in soccer, Lennox the friendly, unassuming enthusiast... Johnstone, so bright, so full of life, even if he sometimes didn't always become the favourite of authority.

Thanks, lads, for all the superb entertainment you provided. You put zip into football.

"HISTORY-MAKERS"

by Alex Cameron, Daily Record

Ending an era is not quite like starting one but the nostalgia tonight will certainly match even the excitement of that great occasion in Lisbon when Celtic won the European Cup.

Bobby Lennox and Jimmy Johnstone are names for the pages of the club's history.

They have become synonymous with the outstanding Stein-era triumphs which astounded Europe and, indeed, the world.

Bobby and Jimmy were always great mates, rooming together on trips, so it is fitting that they should have a joint testimonial.

The flying Bobby is still, of course, a key man in the side. Remarkably, he seems to have lost little of his pace.

Bobby is every manager's idea of the perfect player to handle.

Recently, Sean Fallon said to me: "If all players were like Bobby, handling a team would be reasonably easy."

Jimmy Johnstone, few need to be told, is a different type of player. But surely he has been one of Scotland's truly great entertainers—ranking with men like the late Charlie Tully.

Could there be any greater compliment?

"TOUCHLINE-MAGIC"

By Ken Gallacher, Daily Record

It seems appropriate that tonight Manchester United should be the team to meet Celtic in this salute to Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox. United brought back wingers to English football last season—and the men they honour are two of Celtic's great wingers.

There is Johnstone whose touchline magic brought pleasure to so many of us in his years with Celtic. There were countless nights of wizardry. Some will remember him taking apart Red Star, Belgrade in the European Cup... others will remember his almost single-handed destruction of Leeds United, again in the Continent's top tournament.

Johnstone was the supreme entertainer... but Lennox, that jet-paced little man on the other wing, had his contribution to make also. Perhaps he was not as spectacularly brilliant—but his goals did much to equal the skills of Johnstone.

Of course, it's only right that these two should share this night. They were the great inseparables of the Celtic squad... the two players who were always seen together. Tonight they will be together for the last time and it will be memorable...

"SALT & PEPPER"

By Ian Archer, Glasgow Herald

Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox are names that will always be recited as part of a longer litany—but treasured in their own right as well. They were among the first eleven English speaking people to grasp the European Cup to their own breasts and say: "It's mine." They were also the very essence of Scottish wingers.

The speed of Lennox was such that had he started running at Lisbon's final whistle and headed for his native Ayrshire, he would have beaten the plane back home. The size of Johnstone prompted someone to joke: "Stick him inside the trophy and take him home as baggage."

Their talents lay on either shore of a mainstream in Scottish football. They were both wingers, a breed which in other countries during the late sixties—when they were in their pomp—was becoming as extinct as a dodo. They were the two opposite points in the compass created by Jock Stein to make Celtic feared at all four corners of the globe.

Johnstone was the pepper, Lennox the salt. Johnstone was not content to make the ball talk, he could occasionally be in the mood to make it sing as well. Lennox was so fast that full backs became afraid to blink. Johnstone was poetry and Lennox prose.

It is tempting to define and separate two wondrous wingers with one image—Lennox the complete artisan, Johnstone the erratic genius. But that may be fair on neither. They just obeyed another poet's injunction. "To thine own self be true." They gave deep and lasting pleasure in Scotland's football kingdom.

"THE GERMAN SPY"

Ken Robertson, Scottish Sunday Express

Rockets and thunderflashes lit the sky above a snow-bound San Siro stadium as Celtic and A.C. Milan battled their way to a goal-less draw in the first leg of a European Champions Cup quarter final tie.

It was one of those dramatic, nerve-tingling nights in which Italian fans need no encouragement to let themselves be heard. But for one tall, well-wrapped onlooker in the stand, all the noise and excitement that surrounded him did not even add up to a minor distraction.

With a World Cup qualifying clash with Scotland looming ahead of him, West German team boss Helmut Schoen was in Milan to check on Celtic's internationalists. And obligingly, Jock Stein's stars were giving the "spy" plenty to see!

It was Jimmy Johnstone, displaying uncanny ball control on a treacherous surface, who sent a special kind of chill through Schoen that night.

Today, the distinguished Schoen remains one of Jimmy Johnstone's many foreign admirers. He loved the little Celt's special brand of sorcery and was always fascinated by the way the winger could lean so far over the ball before changing direction and leaving a baffled opponent in his wake.

There is no doubt that he would endorse the view of another leading West German F.A. official, Dr. Wilfried Gerhardt, who told me recently: "When he was at his peak, Johnstone was one of the best wingers in Europe—if not the best."

"GOAL-GETTING LENNOX"

Allan Herron, Sunday Mail

When West German referee Kurt Tschencher brought the 1967 European Cup final to a halt in Lisbon, the immediate memory Celtic keeper Ronnie Simpson has of subsequent events is Bobby Lennox running straight into the goal-nets behind him.

As always wee Bobby had got his priorities right. He had seen the Celtic fans rushing on to the ground, thought: "They'll be looking for souvenirs, and my false-teeth are in goal, behind Ronnie!"

Bobby Lennox is the player who has always had his priorities in the correct order. On the field of play and off it, he has been an example to every player in the game.

He is approachable, good-humoured, well-mannered, dedicated and has always looked after himself, often training on his own on the sand dunes close to his home in Saltcoats.

How can such a nice little guy have so much venom in front of goal? It is almost a surprise to learn that he has scored more post-war goals for Celtic than any other player, and that his "record" of over 250 is going to be hard to beat.

The success of Celtic in the European final of 1967

A Word of Thanks to Manchester United from Jimmy & Bobby

It would be indeed remiss of us if we did not make a special joint message of appreciation to our visitors tonight. Manchester United, as everyone knows, are one of the most widely respected teams, not only in Europe but world wide, and we feel honoured that they have agreed to provide the opposition for our Testimonial game this evening.

United, like Celtic, have always placed great emphasis on entertaining and playing attractive football. One can readily call to mind the outstanding talents of players such as Paddy Crerand, Denis Law, Bobby Charlton, George Best and many others.

The present pool has, of course, captured the imagination of the football public south of the border with their exceptional displays this season, and we feel sure that they will provide the type of entertainment that Celtic players and fans will appreciate.

Celtic supporters will welcome the return of Lou Macari who has emerged as one of their outstanding players but we feel sure that they will be equally delighted to witness the talents and skills of players such as Steve Coppel, Gordon Hill, Gerry Daly and Stuart Pearson. In fact, the one thing that strikes us tonight with this Manchester United side is that no matter where you look they have players of outstanding ability.

We offer our sincere thanks to "The Doc", and his Directors for bringing their players here tonight and we are confident that the match itself will be truly a game to remember.

We are certain that all fans will join us in giving a special welcome to David Hay who has kindly agreed to guest for us this evening.

TOMMY DOCHERTY—Preston's bargain buy from Celtic—Now at the top with Manchester United.

by Jim Rodger, Daily Mirror

One of the shrewdest judges of football that I have met was John Kerr, who for many years was the chief Scottish scout for Preston North End in their great days, when they were a powerful force in English First Division football.

And one of his greatest bargain buys was Tommy Docherty of Celtic for a modest fee of £2,000. Tommy became a household name in English football with his great displays, was capped by Scotland, captained his country and became their international manager.

Now manager of Manchester United, Tommy gained great experience in his playing, coaching and managerial experience with clubs like Preston North End, Arsenal, Chelsea, Rotherham United, Queen's Park Rangers, Oporto, Aston Villa and Hull City.

But it was always his dream that one day he would become manager of Manchester United, one of the best known teams throughout the soccer world.

Tonight Tommy comes back home to Celtic, where it all began, to join in the tributes to Bobby and Jimmy.

assures Lennox of immortality at Celtic Park. He did his thing... and he did it well... and he did it all without too much fuss.

SOCCER SUPER-STARS VIA THE JUNIORS

by Bobby Maitland, Scottish Daily Express

Junior football is the breeding ground for pedigree players. Ample proof has been given throughout the years and none more positive than in the case of Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox.

My beat in the early sixties for the Evening Citizen was the Juniors and even in those days Jimmy and Bobby had the makings of super-stars.

Looking back through old clippings I came across two significant write-ups in 1962. The first was about an 18-year-old inside right of Ardeer Recreation after I saw him score two great goals for his team against Kilbirnie Ladeside in the Scottish Cup.

I wrote at the time: "At the beginning of a New Year I give Celtic fans a name which may not be so unknown in the years to come... Bobby Lennox."

That was in January 1962 and three months later I went to Ireland to cover the Junior international in which Scotland won 4-1. Jimmy Johnstone was cheered off the field by the Irish fans after he had turned on a dazzling wing display. My report filed from Ireland read: "Here is a box-office attraction who will be a top personality in Scottish football in two years time."

I was a bit out for 12 months later Jimmy Johnstone was chosen for Scotland for the first time!

Together Lennox and Johnstone joined up at Celtic Park. Together they shared in Celtic's greatest moments. And now together Bobby and Jimmy have their testimonial.

It couldn't have happened to two nicer guys!

BOBBY LENNOX—A top professional

by Jim Rodger, Daily Mirror

During my long career in journalism meeting most of the top personalities I can say without any fear of contradiction that BOBBY LENNOX is among the best.

The longest-serving player with Celtic, Bobby has worthily earned, along with Jimmy Johnstone, tonight's testimonial game. Everywhere I have gone in football I was delighted to hear the praise being heaped on Bobby from managers, directors and fans.

He is the ultimate professional—a 100 per cent effort in every game, whether it be a friendly, reserve or first team game.

It is his speed, striking power and fitness that make him one of the top men at Parkhead. But Bobby has no doubts about the man, who made him a star.

The name: JOCK STEIN.

Said Bobby: "Mr. Stein converted me from a left winger into a front runner, probably the first to play that role in this country. My job was always to find the open space."

Last year, the "Terrible Twins" were honoured by the Celtic Supporters Association as their guests of honour and tonight the "FRIENDS" of Bobby and Jimmy pay their respects. There are thousands of them, all over the world!

TRIBUTE TO THE LITTLE B-I-G MEN OF THE SPORTING WORLD

James Sanderson, Daily Mirror

Down the years, in Scottish sport, it is the "mighty mites", who have made history... in every sport from boxing to football.

Johnstone and Lennox, Lynch and McGowan.

The common denominator is being small, but having a giant-sized portion of skill and courage.

In my travels around the world with Celtic, I have always been astonished, and proud, of the way in which both Johnstone and Lennox have been greeted in foreign lands.

With both appreciation... and a great deal of awe.

They have done a great deal, not only for themselves, but for club and country.

For the mighty mites, so inseparable in their days with Celtic, life has been good.

They have embodied all the great things of the great little sportsmen of Scotland, who have substituted, thank goodness, brain for brawn!

Both have relished the dual nickname of the "wee men", words that conjured up the ebullience and free-range talents of men to whom a ball was the ultimate in life and whose dedicated mode of life was to entertain.

In the mind's eye of football fans from Parkhead to Peru, Moscow to Miami, these two, a twinkle in the eye and feet, made the game we all love so much richer and so much worth watching.

JIMMY JOHNSTONE—The player the Europeans feared

by Jim Rodger, Daily Mirror

One of the greatest games I watched Jimmy Johnstone play for Celtic was in Barcelona before they made their big push in Europe.

It was just before Jock Stein had arrived back at Parkhead to manage Celtic in their ten glorious years, and they were playing in the Fair Cities Cup, now known as the UEFA Cup, which is the third prize for playing in Europe.

Although Celtic lost 3-1 that November night in 1964, the Spanish fans took Johnstone to their hearts. There was no doubt Jimmy at an early age had conquered Europe, and he proved it in the European Cup-tie against Red Star of Belgrade, when they won 5-1.

And it was only fitting that Jimmy along with Bobby Lennox were members of the famous Lisbon Lions, when they defeated Inter-Milan to be the first British club to win the European Championship in 1967.

When he played schoolboy football in Lanarkshire, he used to read the Stanley Matthews book of football, to pick up as many tips as possible, and always dashed from school to his Viewpark home to set up milk bottles for dribbling practice.

It was no surprise when he turned 17, that he signed for Celtic. Like most Celtic players, Jimmy was to play for Scotland, but he had keen competition since his right-wing rival was Willie Henderson of Rangers.

Although he is now with Sheffield United the "FRIENDS OF CELTIC" have not forgotten him in paying their tribute tonight to THE TERRIBLE TWINS.

Martin Frizell, News of the World

Johnstone and Lennox. Two of the great inseparables in the world of entertainment like Morecambe and Wise, Laurel and Hardy!

I saw Jimmy in his first taste of the big time. It was a junior international at Newtonards, Northern Ireland, and the way he danced past the defence that day even Irish eyes were smiling.

Recently I asked Bobby if he ever felt lonely at Parkhead as the last of the Lisbon Lions.

"Never lonely but sometimes nostalgic," he said.

"Often I think back on a move during a game and wonder: what would wee Jimmy have done if he'd been there?"

Rodger Baillie, Sunday Mirror

It was that never to be forgotten afternoon in Lisbon, and Celtic were set to take on the masters of Italy, Inter-Milan, in the European Cup Final.

Suddenly as they waited those two inseparable pop experts, Jimmy Johnstone and Bobby Lennox, started singing a Beatles tune, and the refrain was taken up by the rest of the team.

When the astonished Italians eventually arrived they could only gasp open-mouthed at the amazing coolness of the Celtic players, so carefree only minutes before the most important event in their football lives.

It may not have been the most significant soccer contribution of Johnstone and Lennox in their long and illustrious Celtic careers.

Football pays tribute tonight to two of the great wingers of Scotland's post-war history.

Perhaps we are still too close to watching Johnstone and Lennox in action to evaluate their true place in soccer's hall of fame.

What we do remember tonight is the memory of two little men, so different in soccer style, yet so effective for their club.
