BIG ENOUGH TO COPE · SMALL ENOUGH TO CARE

Chairman's welcome to Celtic Park

IT'S my pleasure tonight to welcome the players and officials of Borussia Dortmund to Celtic Park.

This meeting will enter the history books no matter how the game finishes.

For, remarkably, Borussia Dortmund are the first team from West Germany we have ever faced in European competition. This is an amazing statistic when you consider how many times Celtic have been in Europe and how many times German sides consistently get to the latter stages.

What will also add spice to tonight's occasion is that ex-Celtic favourite Murdo McLeod returns to his ground, albeit a great deal sooner than he had expected. And I am sure Murdo will have already informed his German team mates about the special nature of a Celtic crowd on these big European occasions — and how sporting they can be. Already I can envisage that statisticians rushing to their record books to check whether tonight is the first time an ex-Celt has faced Celtic in European competition. I don't personally recall if this has previously occurred.

No matter the outcome of this first round tie I hope that it will be played in a sporting manner amid a great deal of good football.

Any tie against a German side always promises to be a close encounter. And Borussia, despite not having made the best of starts to their league campaign, are in this competition on merit under the shrewd guidance of their young and ambitious coach, Reinhard Saffig.

It is my desire that our German guests will take home pleasant recollections of their stay in Glasgow and good reports about the reception accorded them by the Celtic support.

JACK MCGINN

Tonight's Mascot

CELTIC'S mascot for tonight's European clash is six years old Lee Michael Rodgers from Croffoot in Glasgow's South Side.

Lee's favourite players are captain Roy Aitken and midfield maestro Paul McStay. And he's confident that, inspired by these two, Celtic will go on to victory.

Lee, who will be accompanied by his Dad for the occasion, is looking forward to leading the players onto the park. We hope that his night will be a memorable one for him.

The rebirth of Borussia Dortmund

BORUSSIA Dortmund have experienced something of a renaissance in the last 12 months or so.

Just over a year ago the once mighty Bundesliga club were involved in a play-off to avoid relegation. But in an amazing turn-around the much maligned Dortmunders not only managed to avoid the drop — they actually went on to secure this season's UEFA Cup spot after finishing fourth in last season's Bundesliga.

In the process their home gate averaged 34,000. Only Bayern Munich could better that with an average of 37,000.

And only Borussia Moenchengladbach scored more goals: 74 to Dortmund's 70.

Now the club's fanatical support is once again looking forward to the good old days. They yearn for the days when Dortmund won the championship in 1956, 1957 and 1966, when they lifted the European Cup Winners Cup in 1966 after defeating Liverpool at Hampden.

Since those deadly days though, their fans have had little to cheer about. Only twice since 1966 have Dortmund qualified for Europe. In the 1967 Cup Winners Cup and in the 1983 UEFA. But on both occasions they suffered 1st round defeats at the hands of ... Glasgow Rangers!

The club also suffered the ignominy of being relegated in 1972. They were to spend four years in the German wilderness before staging a return to the hardest league in the world.

Since 1963 when the Bundesliga was inaugurated Dortmund have dispensed with the services of an incredible 28 managers.

Even an Italian government looks like a paragon of longevity in comparison!

But the Borussia tale of iniquity was halted with the arrival of Reinhard Saffig in 1984 as assistant coach. Saffig had previously been Bayern's assistant coach for five years. Last season the 35-year-old became Dortmund's first team manager.

In his three years at Dortmund Saffig has seen the club's debts decrease from £1.95ms to £250,000.

In addition to this the wily Saffig has played the transfer market shrewdly but with amazing results. For a total outlay of £643,000 he assembled his lethal goalscoring duo of Frank Mill and Norbert Dickel, defender Helmer and keeper De Beer.

The upsurge in the club's fortunes has been unexpected. Just ask international No. 1 keeper Erik Immel. He left Dortmund for Stuttgart because he was fed up missing out on Europe year after year. But in a cruel twist of fate Stuttgart failed to qualify for Europe while Dortmund did.

The fans, starved of success for so long, just can't get enough of it now. Over 15,000 appeared at the club's initial pre-season training stint.

The fall and rise of Dortmund is similar to the Hearts re-birth. Despite their failure at home and abroad for two decades both sides are potentially among the top five in their respective countries. And its only recently that things have started happening for them again.

In addition Borussia have a smart new stadium with a capacity of 53,790. What is certain is that no matter what occurs at Celtic Park tonight the Westfalenstadion will be jammed in two weeks time for the second leg.

Tommy Burns scorer of four European goals.

CELTIC v BORUSSIA DORTMUND

■ THIS is the first time Celtic have met a West German team in any of the European competitions. This leaves Bulgaria, Cyprus, N. Ireland, Sweden, Turkey and Wales as the only countries we have still to visit.

■ WHEN Nottingham Forest won here in 1983 in the UEFA Cup, it was our first home defeat in Europe in over 14 years when we lost 1-0 to A.C. Milan in the European Cup.

■ ONLY 4 players in our present squad know what it's like to score in a European competition. They are Roy Aitken (5), Tommy Burns (4), Paul McStay and Mark McGhee with one each.

■ IN 33 European matches Murdo McLeod scored a creditable 8 goals for Celtic.

A great competition for Celtic fans

YOUR CHANCE TO WIN A CELTIC AMERICAN FOOTBALL SHIRT

THE Celtic programme is tonight offering readers the chance to win a great prize in a free to enter competition.

We have three Celtic NFL tops (as worn by Paul McStay, right) to give away to three lucky readers.

Just answer the following questions about Celtic's international midfielder.

1. How many caps has Paul gained for Scotland (appearances as substitute included)?
2. Paul has grabbed one hat-trick in his Celtic career. Who were Celtic's opponents on that occasion?
3. Against whom did Paul make his international debut?

Send your entries to:

PAUL McSTAY COMPETITION
CELTIC VIEW
18 KERRYDALE STREET
GLASGOW

The first three correct entries drawn will win a NFL shirt. Closing date for entries, September 30th.

The Editor's decision is final.

CELTIC NFL shirts are available from the Celtic Shop at Celtic Park, priced £9.95.
