My first task this week is to pay tribute to the courage of goalkeeper Jim McArthur for playing the entire 90 minutes against Dundee United. It was a sickening gash he suffered — some five inches in length — and he showed a lot of heart in refusing to go off.

His confidence has taken a few knocks lately and there was speculation over the possibility of Alan Rough joining us from Partick Thistle. But Jim did not want to let his teammates down and played on gallantly.

It would have been great if there had been a happy ending to the episode but United won well after surviving some scary moments.

first goal and there was a spell with the score at 1-0 when all the activity was in their half.

Gary Murray did well for us again but it's all a matter of being safe at the back and ready to snap openings at the other end.

For instance, we tossed away a point to Kilmarnock a fortnight ago. Hibs took the lead after gifting them a goal and finally surrendered a point that we could ill afford.

Apart from the top clubs, it's hard to win away games but we should be faring far better at home. It is not enough to share with clubs in the same area of the table.

This is a hard one for us against Celtic, but I know the players will pull out all the stops to see if we can repeat last season's results against them.

I'm sorry to report that Tom McNiven was rushed to hospital on Wednesday and put in the intensive care unit. Everyone here wishes him a complete and speedy recovery and we'll try to cheer him with some good results.

TENNENTS BRING GLAMOUR TO THE AMATEUR GAME

Glamour and entertainment are supposedly lacking in football but not when Tennents, sponsors of today's match, get involved. For comedian Andy Cameron and Tarrant's Lager Can Girl, Sandra, brought a touch of both when they got together to make the draw last week for the Fourth Round of this year's Scottish Amateur Tennent Caledonian Cup, now being sponsored by Tennent Caledonian for the sixth successive year. Making sure that things did not get out of hand was S.A.F.A. President, Jack Robertson, who indicated that this year's Cup had attracted almost 800 teams from all over Scotland.

Hibs returned pointless from Tannadice last week but not without a crop of casualties.

Goalkeeper Jim McArthur needed eight or nine stitches in a gaping wound in the lower part of the leg after a clash with Paul Sturrock.

At first, it seemed Jim would be forced to retire as he had done at Ibrox four weeks earlier. However, the wound was patched up on the spot and stitched during the break to allow him to carry on, but it took a lot of grit on his part.

Willie Irvine was the next victim on the stroke of half-time and he had to quit with a bruised and swollen ankle.

Stuart Turnbull completed the game but in some discomfort, for he had strained knee ligaments in a tumble early on.

And just to add to the tale of woe, Gordon Rae picked up a thigh strain which demanded attention.

All that from 90 minutes seems unjust especially with Ally Brazil and Erich Schaedler still out for some time. Ally must wear his plaster for a day or two more while Erich's orders are simply to rest.

On the brighter side, Peter Welsh could be in contention for a first team comeback shortly. He dropped out following the home draw with Dundee United on September 18 so he has missed a full series of fixtures on account of his cartilage operation.

So Hibs are stuck with one victory from a dozen matches and that figure should have been doubled in the last home game against Kilmarnock.

After conceding a bad goal, Bobby Thomson and loan-star Bobby Smith pushed Hibs into the lead with extremely well taken goals.

Rather than add to the lead, Hibs lost an equaliser and with it the opportunity to make headway in the table by dumping a team alongside them.

* * *

The next home game here is against Dundee and around a thousand Hibs' Kids have been invited to the game. The junior club, in the hands of Tom O'Malley is proving to be very popular and, maybe, their enthusiastic cheers will help the players.

Hutchison Vale continue their penalty competition today for teams Under-12 and they'll be down to the last four once these ties are over. The semi-finals and final will be decided at the next home game on December 11.

Celtic have averaged almost three goals per game in establishing a three point lead in the Premier League. Only Aberdeen have beaten the champions in the first dozen games and it will take a super performance by any other club to match their consistency.

Most of this season's headlines so far have been directed towards Charlie Nicholas, the goal machine who has become a regular matchwinner.

Charlie, who collected his first goal for Scotland's Under-21 team in Switzerland less than a fortnight ago, has knocked in 29 goals in all matches this season to lead his mates and rivals by a long way.

There is a clamour to award Charlie his first full cap against Belgium next month but Scotland boss Jock Stein may resist the temptation to let him make his debut in a match at Hampden later in the season.

However, Nicholas will earn numerous caps and score a lot of goals for his country in the years ahead because of his natural flair as a finisher.

Another young man heading for a long and distinguished international career is 18-year-old Paul McStay who shows authority and ability far beyond his years. He is a cool marksman, too, and scored once against Hibs at Parkhead this season with a rasping right foot shot.

Already a key figure in the Under-21 side, it is only a matter of time until Paul steps up into the highest level.

It was a disappointment to both these young men when Celtic dropped out of the European Cup to Spanish champions, Real Sociedad. Despite a 2-1 win at home, Celtic could not recover from the 2-0 away defeat.

Of course, they had a remarkable success in the first round when eliminating Ajax with a last minute goal by George McCluskey in Amsterdam.

George has had a few injuries this season and shared the treatment table with Tommy Burns, who damaged ligaments in the first leg with Ajax.

If they are out of one tournament, Celtic are favourites to win the League Cup final against Rangers at Hampden next Saturday. They survived a defeat at Tannadice in the return semi-final to make it an Old Firm affair.

That will be quite an occasion for Graeme Sinclair, the defender bought from Dumbarton for around £60,000. A full back at Boghead, Celtic have used him as a midfield marker on occasions with some success.

At present, he is operating on the left side as partner to Danny McGrain and to the exclusion of Under-21 cap Mark Reid who has been on the bench.

Roy Aitken, knocking hard on the Scotland door, and Tom McAdam are together in the middle of the defence with Irishman Pat Bonner in goal.

Murdo MacLeod, always on the look-out for a shooting chance, is the third man in midfield leaving Davie Provan and Frank McGarvey to link up with Nicholas.

Celtic are fast, lively and always entertaining and they provide the kind of football to keep the fans happy. Will it be lucky 13 for them or Hibs today?
