OUR VISITORS

CELTIC

CELTIC BACK AT THE TOP

It's hardly surprising to see Celtic, our opponents this afternoon, back in their old familiar position, perched prettily at the top of the Premier League.

For Celtic have surged into the form which made them Britain's most formidable representatives in Europe.

They play aggressive soccer, with the accent on sparkling attack, and they have a good run of success.

The two Celts who stand out above the rest are Danny McGrain, undoubtedly the best full-back in Europe today, and Kenny Dalglish, whose brilliant touches make him a world class player.

Celtic, however, always put the accent on team work and there are no weaknesses in a side gaining in confidence with every game.

They spice hard graft with adventure and perhaps young Roy Aitken sums up the Celtic attitude. This Ayrshire lad is strong but, like the late Duncan Edwards, of Manchester United, he has great talent and is undoubtedly going to be one of the great mid-field players.

Celtic have strengthened their resources with the transfer of Johnny Doyle, from Ayr United, and so well are they playing that stars of the magnitude of Iceland's Jo Edvaldsson and Pat McCluskey can't find a place at the moment.

In sharp form is Joe Craig, formerly of Partick Thistle, and Pat Stanton, one of manager Jock Stein's shrewdest signings, has made a tremendous difference to the Parkhead defence, in which Roddy MacDonald has now begun to dominate.
